He Could Manage Her

With Campbell Brewster's circus which was here last week was a Sioux brave, Smut-on-the-nose and his squaw Miss Calico Cat. In the side show this couple were the whole thing. Smut-on-the-nose gave an imitation of life on the frontier at fifty years ago and could tell you a few things about Clark street in the real Chicago vernacular. Little Calico Cat had dove's eyes and a smile that won admiration.

While here, Spink Jenkins, a nearby housekeeper, lingered long at the side of the dusky princess, and as the show went on he whispered words of idleness to her. She, it seems, liked Spink's line of talk and once when old Smut-on-thenose's eyes were turned their banish ment and a few words of sweet nothings were whispered. Then a tryst was made and the brown-skinned maid tailed her lover not. She slipped away from her old war chief after the show and joined Spink. But Smut-on-the-nose was a faker. The old blood of his father was stirred.
The trail was not a long one and he found the lovers sitting on the platform of the C.N.R. station in the pale moonlight. One whooop the noble Kewanee and Spink left for the home. The old war lord knew Calico Cat. He also knew his business. Off came the long damp moccasins he wore and little Laughingwater laid across his knee and the moccasins got busy. Then Smut-on-the-nose and the Calico Cat left town with the show. She, with her legs lord, is telling fortunes in Medicine Hat today and takes her mix to standing.

WANTED TAR AND FEATHERS

Vermillion Signal

The Royal Alexandra, the big C.
P. R. barracks at Winnipeg, was profusely decorated for the glorious Fourth in honor of "our independence by gosh," while the First Canada's natal day, was allowed to pass unnoticed. The good people of Winnipeg were displeased and ventured to say so, so it must really have been serious, you see, because in Winnipeg they swallow most everything. They expostulated, actually expostulated—mildly of course so as not to offend him with the acting manager of the Royal Alex. This high dignitary and boniface, Posh Bah delivered himself of the following deathless sentiments: "This is the Fourth of July you know. I am an American."
"We don't celebrate July 1st here." What this gentleman needed to restore him to a condition of sanity was a dip in one of the fountain bath-tubs in the establishment over which he presided, but of course he didn't get it. We have plenty of Americans over here who are blessed with an abundance both of brains and good sense, but this fellow it is plainly evident has neither. The sooner the C. P. R. gets rid of him the better for the C.P.R., and when he sets foot on his native soil again the authorities should place him under restraint.
We have fools and cranks enough of our own and don't require to import any.

BRITISH FREE TRADE EXPLODED

Canada

Daily it becomes more evident that Mr. Winston Churchill's defeat at Manchester, the chieftain of so called free trade, was a veritable sign of the times, an omen of the speedy victory of tariff reform. To use the phrase of the Roman historian, "bos locutus est," which may be translated on this occasion, "John Bull has spoken out." The lessons of Manchester and Waverhampton have been repeated in the result of the by-election at Fudsey, a great industrial constituency in Yorkshire, where a tremendous turn-over of votes gave the tariff reform candidate a victory that even his most sanguine supporters did not expect. Mr. Asquith's attempt to bribe the electorate by the offer of old age pensions has clearly failed. The British working man sees that no provision can be made for financing the necessary money ($30,000,000 a year) for these doles, and whether he lives in town or country, prefers a policy which, by giving security of employment, would enable him to save enough for his old age. The plan proposed in Canada of basing a Government scheme of old age pensions on the individual's thrift, is the only sound financial method.

In such matters governments should help those who help themselves instead of actually penalizing thrift as Mr. Asquith proposes to do. The project, in its present form, will not save the Government, and the next general election (which will take place within two years in the opinion of the political prophets) will bring a party into power that will be prepared to negotiate treaties with the king's dominions beyond the seas.

Telephone Merger Next

Cleveland, O., July 13.—The Pittsburgher says today that a merger of the independent telephone properties extending from the Mississippi river to the Atlantic seaboard and embracing properties worth over $1,000,000, is again under way.

"Options have been secured it is claimed on the Frontier Telephone Company of Buffalo and on several western companies, forming a through chain of long distance lines and local exchanges to New Jersey. Agents of the promoters have been endeavoring the past week to secure an option on the independent plant at Detroit.

"St. Louis capitalists, it is thought, are represented in the new merger, and will contribute the Kinloch system of that city."
